Connecting the world of public transport

UITP is:

The network of all mobility actors

UITP represents over 3,100 urban, local, regional and national mobility actors from more than 90 countries on all continents.

UITP brings together:

- operating companies;
- local, regional and national authorities;
- the service and supply industry; and
- research institutes, academics and consultants.

UITP covers all modes of public transport - metro, bus, light rail, regional and suburban railways, and waterborne transport. It also represents collective transport in a broader sense.

The catalyst for new business opportunities

By uniting the entire supply chain of public transport players, UITP is an ideal platform for developing business partnerships and joint ventures. UITP helps people make the right connections in a neutral and trusted atmosphere, thereby fostering investments in the sector, improving product development and accelerating sales cycles.

The global centre of knowledge and know-how

UITP acts as the point of reference and a centre of best practices and benchmarking for the public transport sector. UITP gathers and monitors public transport statistics and mobility indicators, and acts as a knowledge hub on past and current developments and future trends. As such, UITP is THE worldwide expert on public transport and related issues.

The advocate for public transport and sustainable mobility

UITP works to mobilise political will with its sound evidence, and to create a favourable climate for the sector. As the representative of the entire mobility market, UITP has a strong voice and significant influence when it comes to defending the interests of public transport. UITP is actively engaged with a number of international bodies - such as the United Nations, the World Bank and European institutions.

The promoter of innovations and forward-looking solutions

UITP is a forward-looking Association, striving to anticipate needs and identify and promote future solutions for the sector.

It also works to empower its members to be equipped to rise to the challenges of today and tomorrow through its programme of training courses.
