

Biography Trainer

Paul Barter, Adjunct Associate Professor, LKY School of Public Policy, NUS, Singapore

Paul Barter is a transport-policy researcher, adviser, writer and trainer with a background in academia and in non-profits. His focus since about 1994 has been urban transport policy. Topics have included international comparisons, public transport regulation, TDM, how to ease car-dependence, Singapore's urban transport history and parking policy.

Paul has also provided parking policy training and advice in China, Colombia, India, Indonesia, Nepal, Saudi Arabia and Thailand. He taught transport policy, infrastructure policy, and urban policy as a faculty member at the National University of Singapore (NUS) from 2000 until mid-2012 and continues to teach transport policy as an Adjunct Associate Professor at NUS's LKY School of Public Policy. He is Australian but have lived in Singapore since December 2000.

He writes and podcasts on transport policy and parking policy via www.reinventingtransport.org and www.reinventingparking.org.

Find out more here.